Weekly Economic Commentary — Dec 22, 2019

Markets

US equity markets continued to hit record highs, on trade optimism and a strong final Q3 GDP reading. The Stoxx600 index gained as did indices in Frankfurt, Paris and London, MSCI's Asia-Pacific index was higher and MSCI's world equity index continued to post a 4th straight week of gains. Regional markets were mostly up compared to the week before, except for Oman; Saudi Aramco was included into the MSCI Emerging Markets Index. The British pound took a beating, posting its worst weekly fall since late 2017, and the euro was down as well (world exchange rates 2019: tmsnrt.rs/2egbfVh). Both oil prices and gold gained over the previous week.

Global Developments

US/Americas:

- US GDP was left unrevised at 2.1% in Q3 (Q2: 2.0%): the upwardly revised consumer spending (3.2% rate from 2.9% reported previously) was offset by the drop in investment in homebuilding (4.6% from the 5.1% reading) and inventory accumulation; imports were also higher than previous estimates.
- •US building permits increased to a 12.5-year high, picking up by 1.4% to a rate of 1.482mn units in Nov. Housing starts rose by 3.2% mom and 13.6% yoy to 1.365mn units in Nov, with single-family construction racing to a 10-month high (+2.4% to 938k units).
- Existing home sales slipped by 1.7% mom to an annualized rate of 5.35mn (the lowest since Jun), constrained by low inventory. Inventory was down 7.3% mom to 1.64mn units a 3.7-month supply (from Oct's 3.9 months; 6-month supply indicates a balanced market).
- Industrial production in the US rebounded in Nov, rising

- by 1.1% mom, thanks to an uptick in auto production after the GM strike ended. Excluding motor vehicles and parts, overall industrial production and manufacturing grew by only 0.5% and 0.3% respectively.
- Initial jobless claims edged down to 234k in the week ended Dec 13 from 252k the week before (which was the highest reading since Sep 2017). The 4-week moving average increased by 1500 to 225.5k.

Europe:

- German Markit manufacturing PMI disappointed in Dec, falling to 43.4 from the previous month's 44.1. The services PMI edged up to 52 from Oct's 51.7, thereby causing the composite PMI reading to remain flat at 49.4, a tad below the 50-mark.
- The same trend was mirrored in the EU PMI readings: manufacturing PMI fell by a point to 45.9; services PMI ticked up to 52.4 (Oct: 51.9); composite PMI stayed put at 50.6.
- The EU's foreign trade deficit touched EUR 28bn (USD 31bn) in Jan-Oct this year. US was the top market for EU exports (EUR 376.9bn), accounting for 22% of total exports.
- German Ifo business climate index improved in Dec, rising to a 6-month of 96.3 from Nov's 95.1. Expectations also increased to 93.8 from the previous month's 92.3.
- Consumer prices in the EU edged up to 1.3% in Nov from Oct's 1.1%. The lowest annual rates were seen in Italy and Portugal (both 0.2%), and Belgium (0.4%) while the highest were in Romania (3.8%), Hungary (3.4%), Slovakia (3.2%), and Czechia (3.0%).
- UK's PM Johnson won the House of Commons vote on the Withdrawal Agreement Bill, clearing the way for Brexit. The bill, that commits Britain to leaving the EU on Jan 31 and to concluding trade talks with the bloc by end of

- 2020, also needs approval from the House of Lords.
- The Bank of England left the interest rate unchanged, focusing their attention on the next phase of Brexit negotiations.
- UK Q3 GDP was revised up slightly: growth was at 0.4% qoq and 1.1% yoy the joint worst annual growth since 2012. Business investment was flat in the third quarter and up just 0.5% on an annual basis.
- UK CPI held steady at 1.5% in Nov the lowest in 3 years and below the 2% target set by the central bank thanks to falling hotel room rates and cigarette prices amidst an increase in chocolate prices. Separately, UK house price growth slowed to 0.7% yoy in Oct its lowest annual rate since Sep 2012, dragged down by falling prices in London (-1.6% yoy).
- Average weekly earnings in the UK slowed to 3.2% in the 3 months to the end of Oct, from 3.6% a month before. ILO unemployment rate remained at 3.8%, the lowest level since mid-1970s, as the number of people in work increased by 24k to a record of 32.8mn.
- UK retail sales dropped by 0.6% mom in Nov, following a 0.1% reported drop in Oct. Only household goods stores reported growth during the month.

Asia Pacific:

- The People's Bank of China reduced the interest rate (to 2.65% from 2.70%) on the 14-day reverse repo agreements; it also added net CNY 200bn into the financial system with 7- and 14-day reverse repo agreements.
- China fixed asset investment grew by 5.2% yoy in Jan-Nov to CNY 53.37trn (USD 7.63trn). Investment by the state and private sector increased by 6.9% and 4.5% respectively.
- China industrial production increased by 6.2% in Nov (Oct: 4.7%), recording the fastest yoy growth in 5 months. Retail sales accelerated by 8% yoy (Oct: 7.2%), thanks to the government's stimulus measures as well as the popular Singles Day shopping (Alibaba alone reported a record high CNY 268.4bn worth sales that day).

- The Bank of Japan kept policy rates unchanged, maintaining that the economy is "likely to continue on a moderate expanding trend" while highlighting a fall in industrial production
- Japan's exports declined for the 12th consecutive month in Nov, down 7.9% yoy, as demand from China weakened (-5.4% yoy) while imports tumbled by 15.7% (the biggest decline since Oct 2016). A goods trade deficit of JPY 82.08bn (USD 749mn) was logged in Nov, following an upwardly revised JPY 15.66bn surplus in Oct.
- In Japan, core consumer price index (i.e. excluding food costs) increased by 0.5% yoy in Nov while core-core inflation (which also strips out energy costs) was up 0.8% (the fastest yoy increase since Apr 2016). Prices were up as the tax hikes were passed on to the consumers: costs for dining out increased by 3.2% and housing refurbishment and maintenance costs were up 5%.

Bottom line: As the year inches to a close, the US and China are approaching a phase one trade deal (China announced a new list of tariff exemptions for US imports), while in the UK, PM Johnson is getting ready to ratify his Brexit deal. Major central banks have entered a "pause" mode in a year dotted by protests across the globe — be it in Hong Kong, Algeria, Chile, Lebanon (continuing even after the announcement of a new PM) or more recently in India (after the Citizenship Amendment Act 2019 was passed) — while CDS spreads continue to skyrocket in Argentina and Lebanon (https://fingfx.thomsonreuters.com/gfx/mkt/13/101/101/lbar.png).
