Nasser Saidi, a Middle East economics expert, said the intention was to "jump start" the Saudi economy in the wake of the recession caused by the COVID-19 pandemic.

"This would be a massive increase in investment that will likely modernize and upscale infrastructure, including digital. As proposed, it should be strongly supportive of non-oil growth, increase overall productivity and lead to job creation for Saudi's young population," he added. Saidi added that the move from dividends to investment could be a positive one: "This switch is likely to increase the efficiency of investment since SABIC, Aramco and other entities would aim to earn a market return on their investment. This would cut waste and inefficiencies, an overall gain to the economy."

He also highlighted the impact the Shakeel strategy could have on persuading Saudi citizens to invest directly at home. "This revival of investment and successful program would attract back a fraction of the Saudi private wealth held offshore."
