"The first year was tumultuous for Aramco and oil producers," economics expert Nasser Saidi told Arab News.

"Aramco has opened the path for the privatization of GCC national oil companies and of the energy infrastructure across the region," Saidi said.

"The IPO was a game changer, part of a long-term strategy of reducing dependence on oil and gas wealth and using the proceeds to diversify the Saudi economy. Aramco is a global player, is resilient, with a clear strategy of diversifying its activities and sources of revenue, and with improved corporate governance as a result of its public listing."

'Lack of Clarity'

"This lack of clarity in the prospectus shouldn't alarm us as it's a book building exercise and let's be clear Saudi will do whatever it takes to make this IPO successful because so much hinges on it," Nasser Saidi, president of Nasser Saidi & Associates said in an interview on Bloomberg TV on Sunday. "This is part of an overall privatization program, which has often been delayed so now we're getting to the beginning of that program."
