

"Lebanon Must Enact Drastic Reforms to Survive", Comments in VOA News, 25 Jan 2021

Dr. Nasser Saidi's comments from a Malcolm H. Kerr Carnegie Middle East Center event appeared in VOA News in an article titled "Lebanon Must Enact Drastic Reforms to Survive, Economists Say" published on 25th Jan 2021.

Dr. Saidi's quotes are posted below.

Lebanon has the third-highest debt-to-gross-domestic-product ratio in the world and is in need of extensive economic restructuring, Nasser Saidi, former minister of economy and trade in Lebanon, recently told the Malcolm H. Kerr Carnegie Middle East Center.

"If you look at other countries that have been in crisis – Greece, Argentina, Iceland – this goes well beyond that," he said. "We are seeing real GDP declining in 2020 by about 20 percent. It had already declined by 7 percent in 2019. So, this is a massive depression, even greater than that in the 1930s, in the Great Depression."

Saidi says billions of dollars of Lebanon's stolen assets need to be recovered. Sanctions, such as those under the Magnitsky Act, can help, particularly if the U.S. and European Union coordinate their efforts to get Lebanon back on track. Saidi says Lebanon's corrupt politicians and business elite "need to be held accountable for what they've done" to bring the country into such a dire situation.

"They've effectively destroyed Lebanon," he said. "They're now holding Lebanon hostage. The politicians in Lebanon will feel the bite, and particularly as you start getting perhaps the beginning of a dialogue with Iran and telling Iran: 'You've got to hold Hezbollah back and let's get the reform agenda moving in Lebanon.'"

"What Are the Top Three Priorities for Lebanon's New Government in the Coming Weeks?", Comment in Inquiring Minds, Diwan (Middle East Insights from Carnegie), 30 Jan 2020

Dr. Nasser Saidi was asked to provide his responses to the question "What Are the Top Three Priorities for Lebanon's New Government in the Coming Weeks?" as part of a comment in Inquiring Minds, published by Diwan (Middle East Insights from Carnegie) on 30th Jan 2020. What Are the Top Three Priorities for Lebanon's New Government in the Coming Weeks?

Nasser al-Saidi | President of Nasser Saidi & Associates, former Lebanese economy minister

The Lebanese government must focus, first, on a macro-fiscal-financial-banking program. Lebanon's key macroeconomic indicators point to a severe economic, financial, banking, currency, and current account crisis: a fiscal deficit of 15 percent of GDP and climbing; a sovereign debt equivalent to 160 percent or more of GDP; inflation nearing 30 percent; a depreciation of the Lebanese pound in the parallel market of around 40 percent; and officially declared international reserves of $31.5 billion, while Morgan Stanley estimated net reserves at $11.5 billion at the end of 2019.

The immediate step required is for a ministerial crisis task force (not another "committee") tasked to prepare a macro-fiscal-financial-banking reform plan, in coordination with the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank to include sovereign and central bank debt restructuring. The aim is to rapidly, within the next four weeks, establish an Economic Stabilization and Liquidity Fund for Lebanon, multilaterally funded by the IMF and World Bank, along with the Paris IV participants amounting to some $25 billion in order to stabilize the economy, support growth promoting infrastructure investment (in partnership with the private sector), fiscal reform, balance of payments support, banking sector (including the central bank) restructuring and debt restructuring, by providing guarantees of principal of restructured, longer maturity debt.

Second, the government must provide a social safety net. The sharp drop in economic activity (given the lack of government, business, and consumer confidence amid growing protests) has led to growing layoffs and unemployment, business closures and bankruptcies, falling incomes, a severe decline in household consumption, thereby pushing more people into poverty. The World Bank estimates the extreme poverty rate, that is people below the food poverty level, at 20 percent of the population (760,000)*, while 41 percent of the population (1,500,000) is below the poverty line. The government needs to set-up a targeted social safety net (via cash transfers mainly) to provide support for the elderly and most vulnerable segments during the painful reform process, with the aim of lowering inequality and reducing poverty in the medium term.

Third, the government must introduce an anti-corruption and stolen asset recovery program. Endemic corruption, bribery, nepotism are a cancer eating and destroying Lebanon's economy and its social and political fabric. Lebanon is the 37th most corrupt nation out of total 180 countries. Protestors have, justifiably, focused on high-level corruption. The new government must prioritize combating corruption at all levels by appointing and empowering a special anti-corruption prosecutor and unit and implementing an anti-corruption program with respect to taxation and revenue collection as well as reforming government procurement law and procedures. In addition, the state must recover assets that have illicitly and criminally appropriated by politicians and their associates.

Recovering stolen assets can be a wealth-generating strategy if implemented properly with complete transparency. Lebanon will require international cooperation and building appropriate capacity to support asset recovery. It must abolish the Banking Secrecy Law of 1956, lifting the veil on the misappropriated monies and assets of politicians, their cronies, and civil servants.
